BIG LEAGUE HEADS WILL NOT SIGN UP

Refusal Johnson and Heydler to Sign Agreement Disappoints Minors.

COMMISSION HEAD TO BE SELECTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Deciding that they should have more time for consideration of the tentative agreement between the major and the minor leagues, president John A. Heydler, of the National League, and president Ben Johnson, of the American League, yesterday decided at a conference that they would not sign up the agreement.

John B. Farrell, secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, who had remained here to get the signatures of Heydler and Johnson, was greatly disappointed. He said that while the big leagues had made several promises, it was important that these promises should be in writing pending the drawing of a lasting agreement.

Before leaving here for Washington, president Johnson appointed Col. Jacob Burgrut, president of the New York club, and Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club, as the American League's committee, which will act with the national commission on the question of finding an available candidate for the position of chairman of the national commission. They will act with the National League committee, William Baker, of Philadelphia, and William Veenek, of Chicago.

Johnson, while in Washington, will endeavor to make arrangements for the discharge of certain major league players in service in Europe.

FROST UPSETS ALL SCIENCE IN GOLF

New York, Jan. 21.—When the superstitious suddenly on a frosty night there is scarcely any remedy in the armory of a golfer that can be adopted to mitigate his misfortune. It is largely a question of circumstances rather than of a modification of style to suit the conditions of the weather, and when the footfall is insecure no artificial expedient in the way of advantage can ever be of much use to a player struggling with misfortune to play anything but an exceptionally ordinary and commonplace game.

Indeed, of all the conditions of "weather" that constitute the serious trial of the golfer, no condition is as disturbing, as hopeless, as baffling to find a remedy for as a frosted course. The conditions that raise golf to the height of being a specialized scientific game are, indeed, generalized in that curious borderland between frost and thaw, and he is his own worst enemy who attempts to play in such conditions.

YANK PROSPECT RELEASED.

George Hanks, former noted athlete of the University of Illinois, and who attracted attention by his work as an outfielder for the Great Lakes Naval training station team, as a result of which he was signed by a scout for the New York Yankees, has been released from the service, and will be among the first of the Yankees to report for training. His name is in Latin.

SEASON AFTER STRONG TRIO.

One of the first things Kid Gleason did after being made manager of the Chicago White Sox was to visit the ship yards on a hunt for Joe Jackson, Claude Williams and Wood Lundy. He let it be known that he wanted all three to return to the team for next season. All are arranged, provided certain grievances are arranged.

Golf Balls and Clubs Scarce in England

According to Golfing, an English publication, difficulty is being experienced in the British Isles in getting both golf clubs and balls. This is what J. H. Taylor, many times champion of Great Britain, said: "I tried to buy 500 clubs last week. Two of the biggest firms in Scotland would not look at the order. A finished club is a very short, without the head or anything else, used to cost from 4d to 6d in the United States. It is to get a second price for any article. It will pay golfers to look after their clubs very carefully, if they have trusted sets. For I understand we are not likely to get hockey for this purpose for a year or more. The golf publication carries an advertisement from a well known golf ball manufacturing concern, explaining why it has felt compelled to increase the price of golf balls this year. The increase, he made, the ad says in effect, or else this situation was faced: either reduce the quality, or maintain both the price and quality and lose money."

STROLLS THROUGH SPORTVILLE

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

"You Don't Say!"

It was bitter cold in Cold Harbor, and shortstop Slewfoot drew his bathrobe more tight about him as he shivered before the grate fire.

"This is the coldest winter I ever saw in Boston," said his fair New England wife, her cultured features softened by the mellow flames of the grate.

"I've never saw a worse one myself," admitted Shortstop Slewfoot.

"You don't say!" exclaimed Saydie Slewfoot, for Saydie was his wife's first name when she ordered it on her cards.

"I do say!" replied shortstop Slewfoot. "But in Chicago! Say, kid, in Chicago is where you see them winters. Chicago is worse than Boston!"

"You don't say!" his wife repeated playfully, as she poked him playfully with the poker, with which she had just been poking the fire with which this story opens and without which she would have been at a loss for something with which to poke him with.

University of Texas To Schedule Interfraternity Basketball Games.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 21.—Desiring to encourage all possible talent in basketball, the policy of boosting all minor teams at the university is receiving the attention of William J. Juncos, coach of football and intercollegiate contests at the University of Texas.

"Interfraternity basketball games will begin just as soon as plans can be completed by a committee composed of representatives from each of the Greek letter organizations," said Coach Juncos. "All of the details of the program have not been finished, but undoubtedly will be put out a successful end in a few days. Delegates from the various fraternities have been asked to meet again next Thursday to fully decide the questions.

"Due to the fact that the majority of the organizations have their weekly meetings on Wednesday nights, the committee meeting was postponed for two days until all the chapters have had a chance to elect their captains and representatives. Information has been obtained as to which ones desire to enter the leagues, no attempt will be made to arrange a schedule until the meeting. More information will be given out later," he concluded.

SPORTOGRAPHY By "Gravy"

THE recent death of James H. O'Rourke at Bridgeport, Conn., will be mourned by many of the old-time fans. He was a member of the Giants from 1893 to 1922, and played on several major league clubs before joining the Bridgeport team. For more than 12 years he batted over .300. After he dropped out of the majors he identified himself with the old Eastern League. He organized the Victor league and for many years was a prominent baseball character in the east.

BASEBALL BECAME NATIONAL GAME 42 YEARS AGO TODAY

Baseball as a really national pastime had its beginning 42 years ago tomorrow, for it was on Jan. 22, 1877, that a meeting was held at New York at which the National Association of Baseball Players was launched. Twenty-five clubs were represented, with three delegates from each team, and an amateur league was organized in New York and vicinity—the first baseball league in history. That same year the Trinitarian club was organized in Boston, being the first of the New England clubs to play the New York game, although there were many clubs in that section playing a somewhat different ball.

At the New York convention the code of baseball rules drawn up in 1845 was adopted, with one notable exception. That change was in the effect that nine innings should constitute a game, and that the club scoring the greatest number of runs should be declared the victor. Prior to 1845 a game consisted of 21 "aces" or runs.

The New York meeting gave a tremendous impetus to baseball, and led to its spreading all over the United States and Canada. In the year of the New York convention baseball was played for the first time in Illinois, the Rockford City being the pioneer team in that section, with the Chicago Excelsors a close second. By 1880 baseball had reached the Pacific coast, the first regular game having been played in San Francisco that year.

Baseball was then being played in nearly every town in the east, and in 1890 the Excelsors of Brooklyn made the first important baseball tour, defeating teams in Albany, Troy, Buffalo, Rochester and Newburg.

The civil war put a temporary stop to the progress of the game, but in 1865 the national convention had delegates from Louisville, Louisville, St. Louis, and several Canadian cities. Fifty-three years ago, in 1866, there were 27 clubs in "organized" amateur baseball, which was then and henceforth a truly international pastime.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEATH OF TOM JOHNSON

Tommy Nelson, known in the ring as Tom Johnson, former champion of England, died in Cork, Ireland, on this date in 1891. Johnson made a fortune in the ring, but lost it in gambling. He had a passion for dice, and in one year lost $5,000 in that manner. This is a tidy fortune even in these days, but a century ago it was considered very much greater. In his later years Johnson found England too hot for him and went to Ireland where he supported himself by teaching boxing.

He was born at Derby, and was only 27 years old when he died. He was a porter on the London docks before he took to the fighting game in 1874. He soon developed into one of the cleverest boxers England had ever had. He was soon recognized as champion, and was successful against all comers until 1881, when he was whipped by Ben Fritton. Johnson's great fight was that with Mike Perrins, the Birmingham giant, whom he defeated in 62 rounds.

El Paso Tommy Nelson Anxious to Meet Carter

Tommy Nelson, former featherweight of El Paso, who has been making a good record on the Pacific coast in the lightweight division, writes from Los Angeles that he is anxious to secure a bout at Port Bliss or at Columbus, N. M. Nelson's manager, Bobby Widman, believes that the El Paso boy is able to take the measure of any of the present crop of lightweights at either Port Bliss or at Columbus.

Nelson's manager states that if right terms are offered he would like to meet Tommy Carter, of Port Bliss, in a ten or 15 round bout either at El Paso or at Columbus.

SEASON WITH CARDINALS JONAH FOR HENDRICKS

Jack Hendricks got mighty little for managing the St. Louis Cardinals last season, it seems. He had a 15 months' contract calling for $7500. Out of this he paid $3000 as his share of the purchase price of his contract held by Indianapolis. And then baseball broke up the first of September and he was cut off the payroll for four months of the 12 he contract called for. Figure it out for yourself.
